

Gregory L. Koch, Ph.D., Clinical Director

Dr. Koch is a licensed clinical psychologist and is the Clinical Director of services at C4L. In addition to his focus on neuropsychological assessment, Dr. Koch is a child and adolescent therapist and has 15 years of experience as a high school teacher. Dr. Koch is uniquely equipped to understand the connection between a child's neurological and clinical profile and his/her educational and achievement potential. Dr. Koch provides psychological services to two independent schools through C4L (St. Margaret's Episcopal School and St. Mary's School).

Dr. Koch has participated in several research studies which have been published. He participates in several speaking engagements per year specifically providing parent trainings and teacher trainings in the areas of learning styles, working memory, ADHD, identifying red flags and how to maneuver the school systems regarding IEP and other special education needs.
